

Nationalism helped to fuel the fires that led to WWI, to imperialism and colonialism. Understandably, "nationalism" is viewed negatively.

Now, let's explore nationalism as a concept more generally, as a modern concept. Start by watching this TED Talk from Wanis Kabbaj on an aspect of nationalism today.

https://www.ted.com/talks/wanis_kabbaj_how_nationalism_and_globalism_can_coexist?language=en

Then, answer the following the questions in a new discussion post:

- Can nationalism be positive? At what point does it stop being positive?
- Is Kabbaj correct that nationalism and globalism can coexist? What do you think?